Swine Mange
Do your pigs scratch and rub more than normal? If they do it is possible that they have mange. This is caused by a very small mite which burrows into the skin. Usually there is darkening and thickening of the skin behind the ears, on the neck and back as well as flakes and scales lying in the hair. While this condition will not cause you to lose pigs it can be expensive because they don't do well and also they may be more susceptible to other diseases. The insecticide Lindane is a very effective treatment, but should really be applied twice for complete control. Proper cleaning and disinfecting of buildings is also important.

Don't Neglect Your Cows

This has been an unusually late winter so far and it hasn't been necessary to feed range cows very heavily. It must be remembered that poor feed and slow-growing feed can result in a poor, weak calf crop. A little extra feed now in the form of grain and vitamin supplement can pay for itself many times over in the calf crop. Three to four pounds of grain per animal per day will keep them in good shape, the amount of vitamin supplement needed will depend on the quality of hay being fed. Of course salt, bone meal and lime available for free choice is also a good idea at all times.

Lie on Cattle

Lie on cattle can be the cause of cattle losing weight or not doing as well as they should. In many cases it is not practical to spray cattle at this time of year, but a measure of control can be obtained by dusting. There are only three insecticides which can be used on cattle which are to be slaughtered within 30 days or which are being milked. There are Pyrethrin, Rotenone and Methoxychlor. On range stock others such as D.D.T., Lindane, Malathion, etc., can be used safely according to directions.

Legion Polio Drive Now On

The Canadian Legion's annual Polio drive is now on. All contributions will be very much appreciated.

MAIL DELAYED

This new truck mail service doesn't seem to work out very well as far as mail from Irma to Viking is concerned, and that makes the Irma Times late. Just why letters that leave Irma on Wednesday don't get to Viking until Friday morning is a $64 question.

There will be an Amateur Hour at Albert School on February 28th at 8 o'clock. Free lunch. Sponsored by the W. L. 14-28c.

Miss Alice Tomlinson Feted at Misc. Shower

On Tuesday evening, February 11th, the basement of the Irma United church was gaily decorated with valentine designs in red and white, centered with a wishing well.

A good crowd of friends had gathered for a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Alice Tomlinson, a bride-to-be this week.

On her arrival, the guest of honor with her mother, was seated behind the long table which was heavily laden with prettily wrapped packages. With Mrs. C. S. Smallwood as mistress of ceremonies, the evening's fun was quickly underway. First a sing-song led by Mrs. R. C. McFarland with Mrs. Black at the piano. Then two contests. The first led by Mrs. Eddie Jackson and Mrs. Ted Hill and the second by Mrs. Martin Eger.

These were followed by a piano solo by Mrs. Ted Hill. Then the hostesses got together and sang a very comical original number to the tune of "Alice Blue Gown."

Alice was then invited to explore the contents of the wishing well and all the parcels before her on the table. In this she was assisted by her mother and also Mrs. N. Willerton and Norma. A truly dazzling array of useful and beautiful gifts were brought to light. When these had all been properly admired the bride-to-be was heartily honor lunch was then served by the hostesses, Mrs. C. S. Smallwood, Mrs. C. Angquist, Mrs. A. C. Milne, Mrs. R. C. McFarland, Mrs. R. Dempsey, Mrs. Black, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. M. Enger and members of the Strawberry Plains W.L.

United Church W.M.S. Meet Feb. 27th

On Thursday, February 27th, the members of the women's Missionary Society of the St. Paul's United Presbytery will hold a meeting in the Irma United church.

This W.M.S. Presbytery will begin at 9 a.m. The theme of this meeting will be "What Do the Lord Require of Us?" The guest speaker will be Dr. Jean Whittier, Missionary from India. She will speak at 2:10 p.m. We hope as many friends of the W.M.S. as possible will be present at all or part of this Presbytery.

The Weather

The weather has been consistently cold and snowy so far in February. We have had no large fall of snow at any one time but so many light falls that the depth is steadily increasing. It's been this way ever since the ground hog saw his shadow. We hardly ever see our shadows, it's so cloudy and dull.

DEPARTMENT OF HIGHWAYS

The construction and maintenance of Alberta's roads is a difficult and expensive task due to the vast distances covered and the extremes of both summer and winter climates. The safety of an efficient means of transportation is one of the foremost concerns of the government, requiring the training, equipping, and supervision of a large force of men and machines to build, repair, and maintain highways while farmers ask for better roads to established markets.

The construction and maintenance of main and secondary highways and the licensing and registration of motor vehicles, operators and chauffeurs is the responsibility of the Department of Highways.

SURVEYS BRANCH

The Alberta Surveys Act and the Surveys and Expropriation Act are administered by the Surveys Branch. Land is surveyed for the construction of highways and other roads and for the Department of Public Works are surveyed by this branch. It arranges for compensation for lands required for highway construction and damage to personal property arising out of such construction. All plans for roads, townships, sub-divisions and townships are arranged by the branch and examination and approval of such plans is required. An accurate record of plans and maps is prepared and preserved. Permits for all highway work for all and gas, water, sewer and power transmission are issued by the branch after examination of plans for such projects.

MAINTENANCE BRANCH

The upkeep and repair of main and secondary highways, construction and maintenance of district highways and roads in improvement districts are some of the duties of the Maintenance Branch. Where assistance in the form of government grant is given for construction of roads in counties and municipal districts this branch supervises such construction, heavy construction and maintenance, snow removal, repairs to highway surfaces, centre striping, bridge and culvert repairs, repaving, erection of warning and railway crossing signs and traffic control are handled by the Maintenance Branch.

MOTOR VEHICLES BRANCH

The Vehicles and Highway Traffic Act, The Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnity Act, The Public Service Vehicle Act and portions of other acts involving the purchase and sale of motor vehicles are administered by the Motor Vehicles Branch. The registration of all types of motor vehicles, drivers and chauffeurs is the responsibility of the branch. Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently. Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever.

For all this is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away.

But the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you. — Peter 1: 22-25.

Joe Lavallee, Roger Parent and Lionel Parent threshing flax on Saturday, January 4.

Three Letellier farmers thresh flax in January

Three Letellier farmers, Roger Parent, his brother, Lionel, and Joe Lavallee, a neighbor, harvested about 30 bushels from what was left of a 40-acre field of flax on the Gordon Smith farm near Christie Sliding Saturday afternoon.

This is nothing new for the trio of young French-Canadian farmers. They have been combining grain every month for the last half year.

When the threshing on their own farms about two miles west of Letellier was completed at freeze-up time they began scouting around among their neighbors and soon found that there was a considerable amount of grain either lying in swaths or standing uncut in the fields around Letellier and south towards Emerson.

They took jobs on a custom basis after the ground was frozen sufficiently hard so that their self-propelled combine wouldn't bog down in the mud.

During October, November and December they combined approximately 600 bushels of wheat, 800 bushels of oats and 140 bushels of flax.

Although most of the harvesting they have done after freeze-up has been on a share basis, the six agree they did Saturday afternoon—except for the operating cost—was pure gravy, for the last six acres had been abandoned by the owner.

Steinbach gadget steals the show

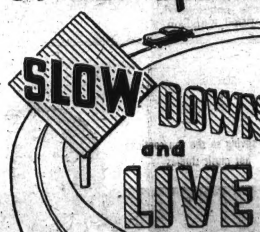

A retractable trailer hitch perfected by Bruno Derksen of Steinbach stole the show at an inventor's convention held at Devils Lake, Minnesota, this last weekend.

The gadget was chosen as the prize-winning item on display at the show, but was not eligible for prize money because of a regulation prohibiting prizes to be awarded to out-of-state entries.

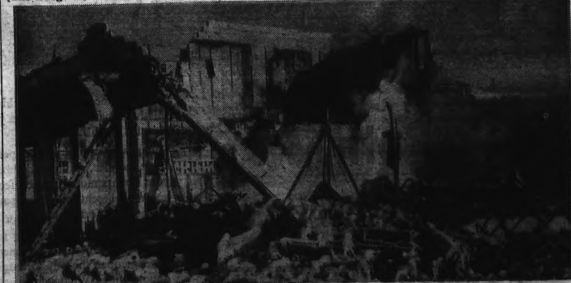

However, Mr. Derksen experienced the thrill of appearing on TV, where he was interviewed and watched by a St. Paul, Minnesota audience. Bruno Derksen is the Carleton Place staff photographer and advertising salesman. — The Carleton News, Steinbach, Man.

Edmonton training center for Nurses Aids

An expanded program of nurses aide training in Alberta, began February 3 with the opening of a new training center in Edmonton. The new school is part of the Department of Public Health's expanded program of providing qualified staff to Alberta Hospitals. A school has been operating in Calgary since 1945 and will continue to provide training facilities in southern Alberta.

The new center in Edmonton can accommodate up to 100 students. New classes will get underway every five weeks. The 40-week course of instruction comprises 20 weeks theory at the school, and 20 weeks practical work at various hospitals.

The Edmonton center is located in the former Carman High School, near the University of Alberta campus. The two-story structure has been completely renovated.

Applicants should be over 17½ years of age and should have a minimum of grade nine schooling. Cost of training is borne by the Provincial Government. In addition to the supply of uniforms, a daily allowance is paid. Students are responsible only for their own living accommodation.

Subject matter in the course includes: mother and child care; anatomy and physiology; common diseases; geriatrics; personal care and hygiene; administration of medicine; nutrition and cooking; ethics; community health; bandaging; and general nursing procedures. A self-improvement vocabulary course will also be offered.

Main floor of the new Edmonton school boasts a modern food laboratory where students will be instructed cooking. Each student will be assigned individual lab space. Three stoves, three sink-and-cupboard units and two refrigerators provide ample facilities for the students.

An attractively appointed student's lounge, two classrooms, a conference room, staff lounges and principal's office are also located on the main floor.

Two procedure rooms complete with 10 hospital beds and a baby crib in each are on the second floor along with two large classrooms. One classroom will also be used for audio-visual instruction aid. Nursing arts will be taught in the main hall.

Locker rooms for staff and students are located in the basement. Sewing room is located on the lower floor.

Staff at the Edmonton school will consist of five professional nurses, as well as clerical and other members.

Goliaths of bear world are afraid of man

For anyone afraid of bears, Alaskans have sound advice: "Leave the bear first."

In territory inhabited by monstrous Alaska brown bears, the biggest meat eaters on land, wise travelers have been known to carry tin cans loaded with rattling pebbles or to pipe themselves along with boomin' whistles.

The largest of the brown bears stand nine feet tall and weigh up to 1,500 pounds—twice the weight of a grizzly. All species carry a formidable armament of claws and teeth. But usually there is little danger, because the awesome creatures are afraid of man, the National Geographic Society says.

Trouble starts when those two most dangerous mammals—man and bear—come upon each other by surprise. Keen of nose and ear, the bears have poor eyesight. Walking quietly upwind, a person can happen on one unexpectedly. So the safe thing to do is to give the bears plenty of warning.

Naturalists who must work closely with the bears without disturbing them need eyes in the back of their heads. Cecil E. Rhode wrote in the National Geographic Magazine after a bear-photographing expedition: "We had to be always on watch against their stumbling upon us downward. My neck muscles actually became sore from constant turning on 'look-out'."

Much of the brown bears' home territory is wild, and there is little chance for contact with human beings. But there are instances of persons being clawed to death, especially those who meet a family group. A mother bear defending her cubs is a dangerous adversary.

The brown bears' range is restricted to a crescent of seacoast extending north and west along the Alaska "panhandle" to the tip of the Alaska Peninsula and a few offshore islands. One such island, Kodiak, has given the largest species of brown bear (Ursus middendorffii) its common name. Other species include the Peninsula Giant Bear (Ursus gyas) and the somewhat smaller Alaskan Brown Bear (Ursus arctos).

After a six-month winter sleep, the bears emerge in spring to graze the meadows like cattle, eating grass and foliage. Bees, insects, and mice also disappear into the cavernous mouths. Although a full-grown brown bear is easily able to carry the carcass of a moose, it rarely kills large game. Mice and ground squirrels are common.

But this diet is only an appetizer, a stopgap until nature serves the rich main course.

In summer salmon swim up the coastal rivers to spawn. Staking out territorial rights on a stretch of water, the bears start fishing. Some lurk on the bank, ready to pounce on a passing salmon with a split paw. Others prowl the stream bed. One caged old male was seen sitting in a stream, his back to the current, waiting for his dinner to swim into the eddy created by his body. Fancy divers seem as interested.

in fun as in food. They gallop out from the shallows, take a long, gliding, plunging submerge, and come up with a fish. On a single trip to the river, a fishing bear may stow away six or eight salmon with an average weight of four pounds.

Young boys clean snow from walks for church-goers

A group of young boys from the south end of Carman showed a high degree of thoughtfulness one Saturday night recently when they shoveled clean the sidewalks in their vicinity for the convenience of the people who walk to church Sunday morning.

Using borrowed snow pushers and shovels, the boys cleaned some six blocks of sidewalk on Main Street and Fournier Avenue. In several instances the boys also cleaned private walks leading from the public sidewalk to the home.

The youngsters, who certainly deserve a pat on the back for their thoughtfulness, were Bobby Blight, Victor Douglas and David Reimer. — The Dufferin Leader, Carman, Man.

Both have a bank account - and a purpose for saving

The difference between reaching a goal and missing it can be the savings you put by, now, in a bank account.

Such savings don't just happen. They involve some sacrifice, definite planning. But as your dollars mount up you feel a sense of accomplishment, of getting somewhere, that makes the effort more than worth while.

Your bank account provides ready cash that can help take care of any emergency that may arise, or open the way to bargains or other opportunities. Whatever objective you may have in mind, and whatever use your savings may ultimately serve, you'll always be glad you saved.

Save at a bank — millions do!
